

Filibuster Fight Flares In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic-controlled 87th Congress convened Tuesday and immediately fell into a row over Senate filibustering.

Barely had the preliminaries been disposed of for a session that must grapple with a wide range of domestic and cold war problems when dual moves were launched to cut down the vote margin needed to control marathon speechmaking.

House Democrats squared off for a battle of their own. Led by Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, they are out to break up a conservative coalition in the Rules Committee, which directs the flow of legislation to the floor.

The opening round in the Senate filibuster row ended with Vice President Richard M. Nixon holding that the members have a right to adopt new rules Wednesday by a majority vote. That opinion is subject to an appeal to the full Senate.

The first move in a fight that may occupy the Senate for several days at least was made by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., who proposed that the votes of three-fifths or 60 of the Senate's 100 members be sufficient to clamp a time limit on debate.

Two Thirds

The present rule requires a two-thirds majority of all senators present and voting. Critics have contended this is virtually impossible to muster.

Anderson's move was followed quickly by a substitute proposal that a simple majority vote of 51 be enough to invoke a time limit. This came with the bipartisan sponsorship of Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif.

Humphrey is the new assistant majority leader, succeeding Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., who moved up to Democratic floor leader. Kuchel was reinstated as assistant minority leader.

Both proposals needed unanimous consent to be considered at Tuesday's session, and an objection blocking this came from Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga. Russell thus resumed his role of quarterback for Southern senators who oppose any change in the debate limit rule.

This set off a series of parliamentary maneuvers during which Nixon held informally that the Senate may adopt a new filibuster rule by majority vote on the first legislative day of the new session.

Americans Outed

The 79-year-old Rayburn, returning to the speaker's chair which he has held longer than anyone else, greeted his colleagues solemnly. He said that "not only America, but Christian civilization stands in the greatest danger it has encountered" since the days of Christ.

"Some foolish or careless man may start a fire that will consume all of us," he said. He added that in all tests on fundamental issues the House will "show the world that whether we are Republicans or Democrats we are Americans and prepared to defend the institutions of the freest government that ever blessed mankind."

In a 2½-hour opening day session, the House went on to adopt the same rules it has followed in the past. This meant the Democratic leadership has given up, for the time being at least, any idea of adding more liberals to the Rules Committee by enlarging its membership.

Under the readopted rules, the committee is limited to 12 members. Alternative plans proposed under way to break the coalition of two Democrats and four Republicans involved an effort to 1. oust Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., and replace him with a liberal Democrat, or 2. reduce the Republican membership from four to three.

Oppose Demo Move

GOP leaders have served notice they will oppose any move to increase the Democratic representation at their expense.

Nixon opened the Senate session at noon and began by reading several communications.

These included the resignations from the Senate of President-elect John F. Kennedy and Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Kennedy was in Palm Beach, Fla., preparing to move his temporary headquarters to New York Wednesday to await his Jan. 20 inauguration.

Johnson was in the chamber as a re-elected senator. He resigned promptly after being sworn in, and was replaced by former Sen. William Blakely, D-Tex. Blakely will serve until Johnson's successor is chosen in a special election.

25 Killed In Air Crash

VAAASA, Finland (AP)—A Finnish passenger plane plunged into a snow-covered forest Tuesday and exploded, killing all 25 aboard. It was Finland's worst air disaster.

The plane, a DC3 of Finnair, was flying low preparing to land at the airport near this coast city on the shores of the Gulf of Bothnia.

North Viet Nam, Russia Accused Of Aiding Rebels

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The jungle-shrouded war of Laos touched off East and West charges and countercharges Tuesday of intervention in the Red-menaced Asian kingdom.

While facts and propagandist efforts were weighed, the government of Laos repeated at the United Nations its charge of last weekend that several Red battalions had moved in from neighboring North Viet Nam. It made only a minor change, saying now there were six battalions rather than seven.

In Washington, the United States accused the Soviet Union and Red North Viet Nam of carrying out at least 218 airlifts of weapons and Vietnamese soldiers to pro-Communist forces in Laos since Dec. 3.

Cuba Is Alert-- Castro

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro said Tuesday night "Cuba is alert" and then called his Cabinet into urgent session on President Eisenhower's breaking of diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The Cabinet presumably was called to draft a reply to the Washington announcement.

Castro made the comment to a reporter as he emerged from the presidential palace where he attended a reception for visiting foreign delegations.

Comment Unnecessary

Asked if he knew the United States had broken diplomatic relations with Cuba, Castro replied, "Yes."

Asked for comment, he said: "I don't have to comment. Cuba is alert."

Then he sped off to an undisclosed destination with Capt. Antonio Nunez Jimenez, chief of the Cuban Agrarian Reform Institute.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said meanwhile that every effort would be made to keep a caretaker force on hand for an indefinite time in order to clean up pending embassy affairs.

The bulk of the embassy staff, which already had been ordered out of the country in a fiery speech Monday night by Castro, made plans to leave Havana by ferry boat.

Leave Today

The embassy personnel will travel to the Florida mainland Wednesday afternoon. Their property and belongings will be ferried across later on another boat.

President Osvaldo Dorticos and Acting Foreign Minister Carlos Olivares, who also were at the reception, declined comment on the U.S. action. Foreign Minister Reul Roa is in New York for a U.N. Security Council meeting Wednesday where he will press charges that the Eisenhower administration is preparing to invade Cuba.

More than an hour after the announcement reached the capital, radio stations still had not given out the news.

The greatest sufferers under the new action are the Cubans themselves, the few employed at the embassy and the thousands who await visas to the United States.

Dismissal notices went to 120 Cubans working inside the embassy, many of them 20-year employees. Some were in tears.

To ease the blow, the embassy offered its Cuban employees and their families immigration visas to the United States.

No Immediate Effect

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense officials saw little likelihood Tuesday night that the formal severance of diplomatic relations with Cuba would have any immediate effect upon U.S. retention of the naval base at Guantanamo Bay.

Police Battle Socialists In Belgium

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—Police with sabers and clubs fought strikers in Brussels and other major cities Tuesday as Parliament opened debate on the object of the workers' wrath—a rigid economy program.

Socialist leaders of the general strike, now in its third week, defiantly called for more mass rallies in the streets Wednesday.

Ignoring appeals to call off the strike, the Socialists tried to scrap the austerity program in Parliament after hearing Premier Gaston Eyskens denounce the mass walkouts as political.

The conservative coalition bent down to point out that Secretary of State Christian A. Herter in a note to Cuba had said the United States would ask Switzerland to assume diplomatic and consular relations in Cuba on behalf of this government.

The press secretary declined to answer any questions about what the United States intends to do with the naval base it operates in Guantanamo, Cuba.

He was asked whether the United States still intends to defend the base by force if necessary against any attack by Castro.

He also was asked whether the United States intended to keep its naval personnel at the base.

Guaranteed by Treaty

To both questions Hagerty said he could not go beyond the President's statement, which did not mention Guantanamo.

This country has maintained that its rights to the base are guaranteed by a treaty of long standing.

U.S.-Cuban relations have been deteriorating steadily since Castro's accession to power two years ago, when his revolution overthrew the regime of Fulgencio Batista.

The last straw came Tuesday, Castro ordered the U.S. Embassy staff out to 11, declaring that the embassy harbored spies directing counterrevolutionary activities. The staff has recently numbered 87, having been cut in the past six months from about 120.

Castro's action was a followup to his charges last weekend that President Eisenhower had ordered U.S. Marines to invade Cuba before Jan. 18. Castro-controlled newspapers said the Cuban government had learned of such a plot from reliable sources.

At the time, Hagerty described the charges as ridiculous.

Ike's Statement

The President's statement said: "Between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, the government of Cuba delivered to the United States charge d'affaires ad interim of the United States Embassy in Havana a note stating that the government of Cuba had decided to limit the personnel of our embassy and consulate in Havana to 11 persons."

"Forty-eight hours was granted for the departure of our entire staff with the exception of 11. This unusual action on the part of the Castro government can have no other purpose than to render impossible the conduct of normal diplomatic relations with that government."

"Accordingly, I have instructed the secretary of state to deliver a note to the charge d'affaires ad interim at Cuba in Washington which refers to the demand of his government and states that the government of the United States is hereby formally terminating diplomatic and consular relations with the government of Cuba. Copies of both notes are being made available to the press."

Seventh Nation

Six Latin American governments have broken off relations with the Castro regime. They are the Dominican Republic, Paraguay, Nicaragua, Haiti, Guatemala and Peru.

Uruguay recently repudiated it was considered similar action.

The U.S. break came two years and two days after Castro came to power in Cuba.

Although the United States adopted what it called a policy of patience toward his regime, relations worsened as Castro began seizing American property without compensation and issuing a stream of anti-American statements.

The United States halted imports of sugar from Cuba last year. Sugar is Cuba's main crop and Cuban sugar had received a two-cent premium from the United States. Later last year the United States called its ambassador, Philip Bonsal, home and halted all exports to Cuba except for a few items.

The break means that the United States has severed relations with two countries in the Western Hemisphere. The United States broke off relations with the Dominican Republic last August after the foreign ministers of the Organization of American States voted to do so.

Praises Move

Rep. Armistead Selden Jr., D-Ala., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Latin America, applauded the break.

"The Eisenhower administration finally has taken the action which I have been urging for many months," Selden said in an interview. "To maintain diplomatic relations with an irresponsible government which continues to mistreat our citizens and which insults our government and our people every day has been something utterly ridiculous."

Gov. Lawrence Urges Passage Of Proposals

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's State Legislature opened the 1961 session Tuesday with traditional pomp and gaiety that failed to overshadow a note of fiscal urgency.

Immediately after the members of the 145th General Assembly were sworn in and their officers chosen, two bills were introduced to prevent collapse of the relief and education programs.

Then members of both houses settled back in the packed and flower-decorated house chamber to hear Gov. David L. Lawrence outline some, but not all of his legislative proposals for the coming year.

Joint Reclamation

Most of them were programs that failed in the 1959 session, but there were some new ideas—specifically joint reclamation projects with other states for improvement of major river valleys and reorganization of the Forests and Waters Department.

Lawrence received polite applause and some mild guffaws throughout the speech.

Democrats, of course, labeled the speech excellent.

"It really hit the mark," said Rep. Stephen McCann, Greene County, re-elected the Democratic floor leader.

Willard F. Agnew Jr., the new Republican floor leader, summed up the House GOP view by saying the address "was full of promise, but let's wait for the performance."

Sen. James S. Berger, Senate Republican floor leader, said Lawrence's proposals were "reminiscent" of 1959, but that Republicans are "always willing to give them further consideration."

Lawrence called for unity in the public interest and a businesslike session, reminding the lawmakers that state budgets must now be made on an annual basis, instead of every two years as in the past.

Task at Hand

"This must be a working session, a session which will move with all deliberate speed to adopt an operating budget, to adopt a highways budget, to enact a capital program, to consider and enact legislation in a wide range of vital matters, to propose desirable constitutional amendments, and to re-appportion the congressional and legislative districts in the state."

Thus he summed up some of the crucial problems facing the legislature. He mentioned the economic decline of the nation generally and Pennsylvania specifically, saying this would directly affect state spending and its programs.

Lawrence said the general fund budget would be ready Jan. 16, but did not mention whether new taxes would be needed.

Republicans noted the governor's omission.

Rep. Albert W. Johnson, R-McKean, former GOP floor leader, said:

Taxes, Deficit

"The governor's speech was significant for what it didn't say. He carefully avoided the problem of new taxes and the amount of the Lawrence deficit."

The deficiency appropriation bills were given quick approval by a select committee named to consider legislation until the standing committees are announced Jan. 16. The two measures then were given first reading before the House adjourned until 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

They would borrow $50 millions from the state employees and state teachers retirement funds—to be repaid in the new budget period starting June 1. Another $12,500,000 would be raised by diverting money from unused appropriations of other departments.

McCann pointed out that $44 million was needed immediately to prevent the relief program from going broke midnight Jan. 9. Another $16 million will be used to pay education subsidies while the remaining money will be used for miscellaneous purposes.

Slashed To Death

Young Beauty Slain

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—A beautiful, 18-year-old community theater actress—"so sweet and pretty"—was found slashed to death in the bedroom of her apartment Tuesday.

Police identified her as Donna Trussell, a cousin of the 1960 Miss America, Lynda Lee Mead, of Natchez, Miss.

The body of the dark-haired beauty, who was 18 years old Tuesday, was found on the floor of her bedroom—her throat slashed, her stomach ripped and her clothes torn from her body.

Tests were made to determine if she had been raped.

Lynn Bullard, 25, a cousin of the dead girl, walked into Miss Trussell's apartment to find a young Negro bending over the girl, slashing her with a knife.

Miss Bullard, who told police she was so terrified to scream, fled from the apartment. Allen Rothbart, who accompanied Miss Bullard to the apartment to wish the girl happy birthday, had waited outside the building. He called police. Rothbart was visiting the city from New York.

When Miss Bullard fled from the apartment, the killer apparently also ran out and escaped on a bicycle belonging to the murdered girl's brother who was in school.

Rothbart said he saw a young Negro man, wearing a dark trenchcoat, flee from the scene.

George H. Trussell, automobile mechanic and father of the dead girl, said the killer apparently chased her into the bedroom from another room in the apartment the girl shared with her mother. The girl's parents are estranged.

Trussell said there must have been a struggle. A television set was knocked from its table and a heater pulled from the wall.

"There was blood everywhere," Trussell said.

Police took two Negroes into custody, one with blood splattered in his hair.

Ethel Crumb Brett, technical director of Le Petit Theatre du Vieux Carre—Little Theatre of the French Quarter—where the girl had worked, said the murdered girl "was so sweet and pretty."

Miss Brett said the girl went to New York and tried to break into acting and television.

She said the killer apparently

Walter Named Head Of Demos Caucus

Special To The Daily Record
WASHINGTON — Rep. Francis E. Walter, of 15th Congressional District covering Monroe, Carbon and Northampton Counties, has been unanimously elected chairman of the Democratic caucus for the 87th Congress.

The election puts the veteran Easton legislator in one of the key positions as he starts his 15th term in the United States Congress. As caucus chairman, Cong. Walter will nominate Rep. Sam Rayburn for speaker of the House of Representatives.

Presiding Officer

In responding to the honor, Cong. Walter said, "We are the only national party. It is important that we always keep in mind our diversities, our philosophies and our needs. I'm sure that there is sufficient harmony in the party to insure very prompt consideration and favorable action of the program of the president-elect, John F. Kennedy."

As caucus chairman, he will be the presiding officer at all of the meetings for Democratic congressmen. It is not a ceremonial function, but one that calls for an extraordinary person who can keep all factions within the party working together for the party platform.

Walter's nomination was made by Rep. Carl Albert, the Democratic whip since the 84th Congress and a representative from Oklahoma.

Gets Standing Ovation

The Easton Democrat was given a standing ovation as he moved toward the chair after his election without a dissenting vote on Monday.

Martin To Advise E-Burg On Land

EAST STROUDSBURG Borough Council was told last night that the state secretary of highways will advise it later regarding a parcel of land and maintenance building on Day St. not now used by the department.

Park H. Martin, highways secretary, in reply to a letter from the borough, wrote:

Their red breasts add a bright note to the snowy yard so they are welcome whether their cheer-ups mean "Spring is just around the corner" or "Things are tough all over."

Bangor Council's '61 Budget

BANGOR — Bangor Borough Council tentatively approved a proposed budget of $143,031.62 for 1961 at its regular meeting last night.

The new budget calls for a seven-mill tax on real estate—the same as last year.

An occupational tax of 20 mills, a reduction of two mills from last year, will be levied and a $5 per capita tax will be collected, the same as last year.

An earned income tax will be imposed starting in July. The borough and the school board will share the one percent levy.

Estimated income is $73,748.50 from the real estate levy; $11,449 from the occupational tax; $18,660 from the per capita tax and $23,000 from the earned income levy.

The remainder of the budget will consist of miscellaneous levies including parking meter receipts, delinquent taxes and other sources of revenue, amounting to about $19,000.

The borough is expected to have to borrow about $20,000 in anticipation of taxes to meet operating expenses during the year.

Among the major items in the budget are $17,000 for the borough police department, $13,200 for the sanitation department, $15,000 for the street department, $10,100 for street lighting and $8,200 for salaries of other borough employees.

Council will adopt the budget finally at its February meeting.

In anticipation of probable expenditure of funds for mobile equipment for the borough, council established a fund for the purpose, but set no specific amount. Allocations will be made as necessary during the year.

Houck Named
Arlington Houck was elected chief plumbing inspector by a vote of seven to five on condition that he dissolve his partnership in W. O. Houck Sons, local plumbing firm. Salary for the job was set at $2 per unit inspected.

Burgess Quintus LeBar reported his department has received a total of $16,500.72 during 1960, including licenses, fines, permits and parking meter receipts.

Council also established a board of examiners covering sewer installations. It will be composed of Councilman Walter Warrick; LeRoy Nicholas, plumber, and Houck.

In other action, Council purchased and ordered installed new traffic signals from Reigelmeiers Co., Harrisburg, at its bid of $2,495. They will be located at First and Market Sts.

Food Thief Steals Brunch

GARDENA, Calif. (AP)—Keith P. Hicks barbequed 15 lambchops on the patio of his home.

Then he walked proudly into the living room and told guests their yesterday morning brunch was ready.

When he returned to the patio, only the appetizing aroma was left. Someone had pilfered the grilled goodies.

Portland Fire Chief Downs 'Arson' Suspicion In Fire

PORTLAND — Fire Chief William Pensyl last night charged he was misquoted by an area newspaper which said arson is suspected in a barn which killed 29 cows early Monday on a farm along the Portland-Riverton Rd.

Pensyl also said he has not called in Michael Wargo, State Police fire marshal, to probe the blaze.

"What I said was that in the last couple of months there have been three fires in a radius of about a mile," Pensyl said last night. "Anytime something like that happens, there ought to be an investigation. But I didn't say anything about arson. It might just have been coincidence."

Work Close

Pensyl was asked if Harvey Von Vorst, Mt. Bethel fire chief, had called in Wargo.

"I don't know," Pensyl replied. "He might have without my knowing it, but we usually work pretty closely together on these things and I haven't heard about it if he did."

Efforts to reach Von Vorst last night were unavailing. Portland, Mt. Bethel and Delaware, N.J., fire companies fought the blaze. Cooperation between Portland and Mt. Bethel is so close that when one community's fire siren sounds so does that of the other.

Plans Near Complete For Methodist SS

RINKER and Kiefer, Stroudsburg architects, have reported plans and specifications of alterations and additions for expansion of Sunday School facilities at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church are almost complete.

Specifications will be available to general contractors within the next two weeks, they reported.

The Building Committee of the Official Church board, maximizing a successful fund raising campaign designed to write-off the building cost in three years, reviewed the final drawings on Monday night along with Harold Rinker, of architectural firm.

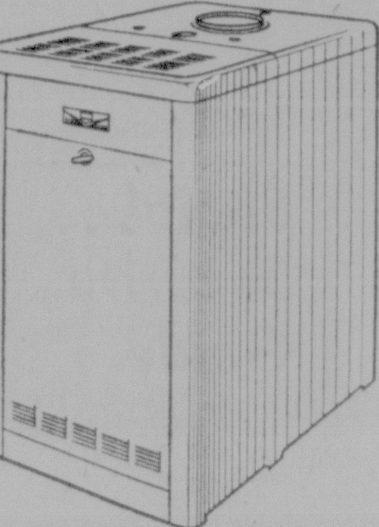

New Additions

The new additions will add fourteen additional classrooms, a ladies' lounge, a 40 by 40 all-purpose room, and will include zoned heating and lighting for optimum use of the facilities.

An expanding youth program under the direction of the newly appointed associate pastor, Rev. William Dearn, has emphasized the need for more adequate space. The East Stroudsburg Methodist Church officials with the largest membership in the Philadelphia Conference, anticipated continued growth in both community and church population.

Budgeting For Education

Americans spent more public tax money in 1959 on educating their grade and high school children than for anything else but national defense, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce reports.

In a survey just completed, the chamber says: "Communities and states poured $15.5-billion into public school education during the 1959-60 school year."

This means the amount expended for each child averaged out to $369. Allowing for inflation, this amount more than doubles the per child outlay in the pre-depression year 1929-30.

"During the past 30 years, while enrollments grew 42 per cent, communities and states raised their annual education expenditures 571 per cent," the National Chamber says.

Among the benefits to accrue from this larger disbursement have been expanded curricula for pupils, a half-million new classrooms in the last 10 years alone, a great number of teachers, and higher salary scales for them.

The new Congress should consider these achievements at local levels carefully before it attempts to project itself into federal financing of education.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Now He Knows

For David Dubinsky, to whom unionization of the workingman is among life's nobler pursuits, the year ends with a slight jolt. His own organizers of the Ladies Garment Workers' Union, their talents honed under his paternal guidance, now propose to organize themselves.

Mr. Dubinsky is opposed, or at least he has remained aloof from the familiar organizing procedures that the matter is now before the National Labor Relations Board. The employees' notification to their usually loquacious employer brought no reply, setting into motion battle plans devised by the master, if for other targets than himself.

There was a similar situation a couple of years ago when organizers for the national AFL-CIO found their unionization bid rejected by none other than George Meany, who like Mr. Dubinsky, is generally considered pro-labor. In that case, the NLRB ruled against Mr. Meany, but not before he had managed to lay off a sizeable part of the organizing staff.

Labor leaders, suddenly become the target of their own organizers, create a somewhat ironic picture. The silence with which Mr. Dubinsky meets his employees petition for union recognition would bring a blast of wrath against any other employer who resorted to it.

As Mr. Dubinsky himself has so frequently reminded, there is no stopping the organization of the workingman into labor unions. If not this time, it will as surely envelope Mr. Dubinsky as it already has so much of this country's industry. And when the unions themselves face the problems of employers, a new era of harmony in labor negotiations would seem in the offing.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Republican Party

The two party system is essential to our political structure; otherwise no opposition will exist to those in power and we shall have a tyranny. The Republican Party or some opposition party must remain in operation.

The recent election established certain facts. One is that the Republican Party is not a minority party. The narrow margin by which the election was lost was so small as to indicate an equality between the parties. However, the recent election also established that Republicans in large numbers no longer vote for their party but vote for individual candidates, as, for instance, members of Congress.

Richard Nixon, as the candidate for President, proved disappointing because he did not fight hard for his election. He covered considerable space, but he did not sharply differentiate between himself and John F. Kennedy as to principle and method. Starting as a two-to-one sure-thing, he steadily lost his lead after the first so-called debate. His arguments were weak and lost him Republican votes.

Republicans are more conservative than Democrats. Even liberal Republicans are more conservative than liberal Democrats, except perhaps Sen. Jacob Javits and one or two others who really ought to follow the example of Senator Wayne Morse and go into the Democratic Party.

The voters expect that the Republicans will be distinct from the Democrats. When they are not, they lose. Landon, Willkie, Dewey and Nixon lost because Republicans did not vote for them in sufficient numbers.

In 1964, the Republican Party again will face the need for a candidate to defeat John F. Kennedy. Unless he, as President, does very badly, he will probably be very difficult to beat. The Republican possibility.

Sen. Barry Goldwater has the forum of the United States Senate. He will not assume leadership in the Senate; that role will go to Sen. Styles Bridges, but as Goldwater will be in the active role of a Presidential candidate, his colleagues will give him every courteous opportunity to exhibit himself.

Sen. Goldwater is an avowed conservative. His task will be to avoid becoming involved with crackpot groups and extremist positions which often conservative persons take, just as liberals often become protectors of Communists.

Goldwater has the advantage of being level-headed, of having had a varied experience in life and of avoiding the pitfalls which have hurt other conservatives. He has the further advantage of being a man of means and therefore does not have to go hat-in-hand for campaign funds.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York is a liberal, a maverick in politics. He has the advantage of having the forum of New York which is a very wide one. He is driven by a compulsive ambition and does not readily accept the rules of the game in politics.

He must be re-elected Governor in 1962 if he is to be a candidate for President in 1964. Should he be defeated in 1962, he will be a dead duck. Extremely unpopular among politicians, he retains a popularity among the people because of his personal charm and the very good name, Rockefeller.

Richard Nixon is, of course, the titular head of the Republican Party and as such he will be respected by the Republican leadership in Washington. Although he ran a bad campaign in 1960, his reputation as a fighter remains and he did get an enormous vote.

He will have ample opportunity to speak in many parts of the country during the next four years and to write articles. The question arises as to whether Nixon will assert oppositional leadership or will be a calm, objective student of events. The Republicans need a strong but reasonable leader for the opposition.

As always, the party out of power makes its record in the Congress and nowhere else. Governors and private persons do emerge, but party actions are in Congress.

The Republican Party must make up its mind where it belongs; what it stands for; what posture it intends to present to the American people. It cannot go on being a mixed-up party. A party must know what it is doing and what it stands for. It must stir people to fanatical support for cause, not with the hope of getting elected or appointed to something. Republican opportunists often become Democrats.

Steering a Careful Course Between Scylla and Charybdis

The Pennsylvania Story

Check, Balance

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Within the space of the next few months Pennsylvanians will have the unique opportunity of watching Pennsylvania's State Government function under a "cross check-and-balance system."

Strange as it may seem, never before have the legislative and executive branches faced the condition they face today—a "double-split" Legislature, with the House of Representatives in Democratic administration hands and the Senate split evenly 25-25 between anti-administration Republicans and administration Democrats.

Voters of the state brought about the unusual situation last Nov. 8. Under the circumstances, what will be the ultimate outcome this time is almost anyone's guess—including legislative leaders themselves.

In theory of course the system of checks and balances has been in operation all along. Actually, however, to all practical intents and purposes it has not.

Under terms of the State Constitution the legislative branch has been delegated certain duties, basically setting up the format for the day-to-day and year-to-year operation of the state government.

By the same token the executive branch headed by the Governor has been handed specified constitutional functions.

Each however maintains a check on the other—with the legislative branch holding the upper hand.

For example, the Legislature by a simple majority vote can pretty much tell the Governor what he can and cannot do. By the same token the Governor if he does not like the legislation, can veto it—with overriding the veto by a two-thirds vote the only recourse left to the legislative branch.

However for the most part in the past, political control of the Legislature generally has followed the pattern of the political affiliation of the man occupying the Governor's Office.

The net result usually has been ultimate agreement between legislative leaders and the executive branch on legislative programs—with the system of checks and balances quite obviously one more of "balancing" than anything else.

In contemporary times the first real break away from this pattern was set up during the 1965-66 legislative session when the Democratic Leader Administration wound up with half of the legislative pie in its fingers (a Democratic House) while anti-administration Republicans held the Senate half.

To illustrate what would have happened had that session followed the conventional pattern of being controlled by the administration rather than the split, or semi-check and balance that persisted:

The administration's proposed classified income tax for Pennsylvanians would be on the books today! It passed the administration-controlled House but died in the anti-administration Senate.

Whether this was or was not to the best interests of the Commonwealth is not at point at the moment in this column. It does serve to illustrate the point of how the check and balance system can function in an extreme at least.

But what will happen in this odd-shaped legislative year 1961 with its "cross breed" check-and-balance system is most certainly anyone's guess at this point.

For both legislative and executive branches no pushover is in sight. In effect it boils down to each selling the other coldly on its own bill of goods. Pennsylvanians would do well to sit up and take note.

Veteran's Guide

Q—Under the old death compensation program, the widow of a deceased peacetime veteran received less than the widow of a wartime veteran. Is this true under the Survivors Benefits Act?

A—No. The Survivors Benefits Act provides for equal payments for widows of both war and peacetime veterans.

Q—I am planning to sell my GI home but cannot pay off the loan with what cash I will receive from the new purchaser. Do I have to have VA's consent to make the sale?

A—No. You do not need VA's consent to sell your property. However, if you wish to be released from possible liability to the Government, you must apply to VA.

Off The Record

A former chaplain in the area decided recently that the age of 81 is a little early to retire. He is Rev. Elias Auger, who served as chaplain for the Civilian Conservation Corps units in the Pocono Mountains from 1933 to 1936.

Rev. Auger is the father of Paul Auger, a printery employee in East Stroudsburg and Mrs. Sally Schroeder, an interior decorator, of Stroudsburg.

Rev. Auger, a man who has many friends in the Poconos, has been preaching for 58 years. In December he took up his new charge at Calvary Baptist Church in Worcester, Mass. Records indicate he is the oldest Baptist minister on record.

On the state of his health, Rev. Auger says, "I think I'm getting older. I can't lace my shoes as fast as I used to. But it's like General MacArthur says, 'Old soldiers just fade away!'"

Rev. Auger has served many churches in Pennsylvania and New Jersey before heading for New England. While in the area he served at the Beakleyville Baptist Church.

Rev. Auger was a big cog in World War I, winning three battle stars and the purple heart for being gassed in France.

A native of Quebec, Canada, he grew up and attended schools in Middleboro, Mass., before going to Washington, D. C., where he was ordained in 1907.

Commenting on his reasons for accepting his recent call, Rev. Auger said, "The church needs me. That's the big thing. You know as you get older you don't know enough to say no."

He summed up his philosophy with: "I like people and I love my calling."

Social Security Guide

Q. Last summer I operated an ice cream stand and made only $250. Do I have to pay a social security tax.

A. No. Your net self-employment income must be at least $400 before it is covered under social security. If your net earnings from self-employment were over $400, you would be required to pay the social security tax no later than April 15th.

Q. I have received the statement of my earnings and I don't understand it. What should I do?

A. Get in touch with the nearest social security office and they will be glad to explain the statement to you.

The Allen-Scott Report

Explosive Issue

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Robert Kennedy will find a highly explosive blockbuster awaiting him when he comes head of the Justice Department.

A former General Motors executive is expressly leaving behind for his 35-year-old successor's determination what to do about launching an anti-monopoly suit against huge General Motors Corp. That has been recommended by Robert Bicks, acting chief of the Anti-Trust Division.

As proposed by Bicks, whose appointment as assistant attorney general was left hanging on the vine last year by the Democratic Senate, General Motors would be sued under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to divest itself of all but one of its five passenger car departments.

This spectacular prosecution is being urged on the basis of the following:

(1) Numerous complaints from GM competitors, (2) the investigation headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), (3) a federal grand jury probe in New York that has been in progress for more than 18 months, and (4) the Anti-Trust Division's own inquiry of over 2½ years.

Rogers decided to leave this dynamite-loaded case for his Democratic successor after discussing the matter with President Eisenhower, cabinet members and top Justice officials.

For incoming Attorney General Kennedy the time-bomb presents some prickly questions.

Foremost among them is that Robert McNamara, new defense secretary, is the former president of Ford Motor Co., a leading GM competitor. Another problem is that an anti-monopoly suit of this magnitude, soon after Kennedy takes over the Justice Department, might be viewed by businessmen as unduly precipitate.

On the other hand, if he does not institute this recommended prosecution, he will be open to challenge on that — both in and out of Congress.

General Motors, largest manufacturing organization in the world, has five passenger car divisions in the U.S. and three abroad. In recent years, GM has sold more motor vehicles in the U.S. than all other producers combined.

It is also one of the topmost defense contractors.

The Charge: Too Big — Sen. Estes Kefauver was primarily responsible for launching the New York grand jury probe.

The anti-monopoly crusading Tennesseean had conducted an extensive investigation of the auto industry, and his blistering report was particularly critical of GM. On the basis of these detailed findings, Kefauver insisted the Justice Department take legal action.

Early in 1960 Attorney General Rogers authorized the empaneling of a special grand jury to consider the numerous complaints and other evidence against GM.

George Reycraft, chief of the Special Trial Section of the Justice Department, personally took charge of this grand jury probe. He was assisted by a group of Anti-Trust Division attorneys.

Among the documents submitted to the grand jury was a special report prepared by Senator Kefauver, stating in part as follows: "General Motors and its wholly owned subsidiary, General Motors Acceptance Corp., are respectively, the largest manufacturing and sales finance companies in the world. In manufacturing operations GM operates 119 plants in 64 cities in the U.S., as well as plants in 18 foreign countries. It employs more than one-half million persons in its worldwide activities."

"It is the leading producer of passenger cars, trucks, automotive parts, buses and locomotives in the world, and an important producer of off-the-highway earthmoving machinery."

"A firm whose gross sales total $12 billion, whose assets exceed $5.5 billion and whose profits after taxes exceed $1 billion cannot help but have considerable effect upon our economy . . . In whatever industry it operates, regardless of market proportions, General Motors presents the problem of size."

"In the passenger car industry, General Motors poses especially difficult problems, not only because of its relative market position, but because of its absolute size."

Inside You And Yours

Dear Doctor

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.
Dear Doctor: Skin tests show that I'm allergic to wool and cottonseed oil. Can I wear cotton clothing?

Mrs. B. Y.
Dear Mrs. Y.: Skin tests show a possible allergy — not a proven one. After cotton is beaten, thrashed, and washed, probably little, if any, oil remains.

Test yourself by taping a small square of cotton to the skin for a day or so. A rash under the square suggests you may be allergic to cotton or the bleach and dyes in the material.

Rarely Troubles
Allergic patients are usually advised to wear cotton clothing because the fabric rarely causes trouble. What kind of sheets do you sleep on?

Dear Doctor: My 80-year-old father eats bacon and eggs for breakfast every morning. Is this good for a man his age?

Mrs. J. C.
Dear Mrs. C.: He's certainly done well on this diet so far, in spite of the animal fats which heart specialists frown on.

Let Him Have Them
Taking away his bacon and eggs might stir up an emotion, a storm which can pour more fat into his blood stream than his daily bacon and eggs.

Why not let him have his breakfast and keep his sunny side up?
Dear Doctor: Is there any way to develop my thin, spindly legs without exercise? Exercise seems to thin them more.

Miss T. P.
Dear Miss P.: Standing and walking on your toes adds substance to the calf muscles which shape your legs. Meanwhile, low shoes magnify their size, while high heels emphasize their slowness.

Need Extra Fat?
Perhaps you're underweight and need starches, milk shakes and other rich food to supply extra fat.

Why not cover your legs with your personality? Be pleasant. Girls who don't need are preferred to ones with beautiful pins.

Dear Doctor: My 4-year-old daughter has a bad-smelling yellowish discharge which stains her underpants. What can I do?

Mrs. J. D.
Dear Mrs. D.: Your daughter probably has an infection caused by several germs.

Clear Up Cause
You must first clear up the underlying cause. It may be itching eczema, pinworms, tight underclothing, improper washing or even poor nutrition if she's a picky eater.

Then, the discharge may clear by itself in six or eight weeks, although antibiotic germ-killers may hasten recovery.

From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton
Here we are the beginning of a new year and already we have seven new issues scheduled for release during the first three months.

Canada has four issues scheduled for the first six months and the United Nations has its usual set of four and eight cent values due in February. So off we go into another "record" year.

During 1960 the U. S. issued 46 stamps, including regular, air mail, envelopes and commemoratives. Canada had only two and the United Nations its regular four sets plus the 15th anniversary sheet.

The first of our new issues will be the four-cent Patrick Henry "Credo" and will have first day sale at Richmond, Va., Jan. 11. Collectors are reminded of the new rule, now in effect, that all first day covers must be mailed five days in advance of the date of issue, or they will be returned unserviced.

Jan. 13, the redrawn design of the new 15-cent air mail will have first day sale at Buffalo, N. Y.

Collectors of Christmas Seals may be interested to know the 1960 Seals were produced by six lithograph companies with the identification mark between the red skirts of the two little girls on the 56th seal. The marks are:

D—Berlin Co.; D—Edwards and Deutsch Co.; E—Eureka Specialty Co.; F—Fleming Potter Co.; R—Bradford-Robinson Co.; and W—Western Lithographing Co.

Leaky Water Main

Dear Mr. Editor:
I should like to publicly thank several neighbors and tradesmen who left their cars, trucks and homes to wade ankle deep water and slush, in order to extricate my ice enshrouded vehicle Sunday morning.

To these same people and other taxpayers of East Stroudsburg, I'd also like to point out a fact that contributed greatly to the dilemma. The weather and its consequences, we are helpless against and that in itself just now is bad enough.

But for a leaky water main to add to the problem is unnecessary, especially when the leak is one of long duration. In fact, one that should have been taken care of when the road was topped.

True it has taken a long time for it to cause any real inconvenience but we on the street have watched that spot in the road since it was paved several years ago, knowing full well, if it were ours to show cause why, there would be a borough ordinance to force the issue.

Maybe He Was Feathering Nest

Dear Abby: I've been married to a good-looking truck driver for ten years. I am not the suspicious type, but listen to this: The other night he came off the road with two long scratches on his left hip. They were fairly deep scratches, yet neither his shorts nor trousers were ripped.

When I asked him how it happened, he said it was probably from a feather in the bed. Now, Abby, I love my husband and I am not looking for any trouble, but do they still have feather beds in modern motels? And could anyone get scratched like this from a feather?

Dear Not: It's unlikely that the scratches came from a feather. It was probably the whole chick. Keep your eyes open.

DEAR ABBY: What do you tell your friends and relatives when they ask you what your husband gave you for your 10th wedding anniversary? He's not the thoughtful type, but he's a swell guy.

DEAR OVERLOOKED: Tell them he gave you ten wonderful years.

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heart-broken girl in the world. My mother gave away Snowball, my kitty, because she scratched my hand when I was putting a doll's diaper on her. It was an accident, I'm sure. Please, Abby, tell my mother I'll do anything to get Snowball back. When I was in school yesterday she gave him to the egg man to take to his farm.

WET PILLOW (I am 10) DEAR WET PILLOW: I am appealing to your mother to please get Snowball back. But, honey, Snowball scratched you on purr-press. Never try to put a diaper over a fur coat.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to be an airline hostess. I have heard that one has to be a nurse first. I have also heard that one must be a certain height and weight and must remain unmarried. Is this true? WANTS TO FLY

DEAR WANTS: Phone the local office of the airline for which you wish to fly. There you will learn where to write for the information you seek.

DEAR ABBY: A child wrote to you saying her father sent her away from the table without her Thanksgiving dinner because she suggested he say "grace" before starting to eat. You took the father's part and said, "Honor thy father."

When parents are wrong, they do not deserve to be honored. I know you were quoting the Ten Commandments, but you should have quoted Matthew, 11:37: "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me."

AN ABBY FAN DEAR FAN: I received a blizzard of protests (including a petition from students at Texas A. and M.) expressing the same opinion as yours. In my eagerness to uphold parental authority I bent over backward too far and broke my spiritual back. My apologies. The father was wrong.

WITH VETERAN car tester Tom McCahill at the wheel, this Pontiac Tempest sedan completed a trip from California to Chicago averaging 28.1 miles per gallon at an average speed of 53.7 miles per hour. The car was equipped with a 140 horsepower, four-cylinder engine and automatic transmission. See the Tempest now at Geo. S. Wagner in Mount Pocono.

Latest Report On Pontiac From George S. Wagner

ACCORDING to George S. Wagner, Pontiac dealer of Mt. Pocono, said a Pontiac Tempest sedan, driven by veteran car tester Tom McCahill, completed a 2,153.3 mile trip from California to Chicago averaging 28.1 miles per gallon at an average speed of 53.7 miles per hour for the entire distance.

McCahill used a standard Tempest equipped with a regular production 140 horsepower, four-cylinder engine, automatic transmission and a 3.08 to 1 axle ratio. Premium fuel, chosen at random, was used in the high compression engine having a one-barrel carburetor.

After an overnight stop in Chicago, McCahill completed an equally impressive trip in the same car to New York City, again reporting 24.4 miles per gallon at an average speed of 63.7 miles per hour for the 866 miles of mostly turnpike driving.

Following famous Route 66 from Los Angeles to Chicago, McCahill completed the journey in five days under normal driving conditions, including high altitude stretches up to 7,000 feet.

During the first day's drive he reported the six-passenger Tempest turned in better than 31 miles per gallon by staying well under maximum speed regulations. Later the car's speed was held close to allowable limits for a trip average of 53.7 miles per hour.

In addition to several hundred miles of high altitude roads, such large cities as Oklahoma and St. Louis prevented scoring an even higher miles per gallon figure.

The trip to Chicago was accomplished during daylight hours and running time was tabulated from the moment the ignition switch was turned on until it was turned off at the end of each leg.

Timing his Chicago departure with that of the crack 20th Century Limited, McCahill's Tempest beat the fast passenger train into New York's Grand Central Station by a comfortable margin. The overnight train makes the run in about fifteen hours. McCahill covered the 866 miles by road in 13.6 hours, leaving plenty time for breakfast and to meet the train as it arrived from Chicago with Mrs. McCahill aboard.

Designed as a family-size car with economy of operation in mind, Pontiac's new Tempest series features a front-mounted, four-cylinder engine and a rear-mounted transmission, either automatic or synchromesh. Adapted from Pontiac's time-proven V-8, Tempest four-horsepower ranges from 110 to 155 and is available in premium and regular fuel versions.

See the new compact Pontiac Tempest now at Geo. S. Wagner, headquarters from Pontiac and Tempest sales and service in Mt. Pocono.

Demand For Farm Equipment Is On The Up-Grade

DEMAND for farm equipment is on the up-grade and industry sales in 1961 should be 15 percent higher than in 1960, Merritt D. Hill, vice president and general manager of Ford Motor Company's Tractor and Implement Division, said here yesterday.

"The year 1960 was a very disappointing one for most producers of farm equipment. The industry's tractor production slumped 45 per cent from the 1959 level. Ford tractor production declined correspondingly," he reported.

"Retail sales were off more moderately, the decline resulting primarily from unusually cold and wet weather in many areas of the United States in the Spring and from farmer pessimism in the early part of the year regarding income prospects."

"It appears now that this pessimism was not justified. Gross farm income in 1960 is estimated at $37.7 billion, a slight increase from 1959. With fewer farms in operation in 1960, the pre-farm average gross income rose an estimated three per cent this year."

"Because reliable industry statistics on inventories and retail sales are not available in time to be of much benefit to members of our industry in planning production schedules, field stocks of tractors and of many items of farm equipment and harvesting machinery were substantially higher at the beginning of 1960 than warranted."

This led to production curtailments, and in some lines to "distress" selling.

"The excessive inventories appear now to have been worked off, and production in line with sales can be resumed."

"We believe that 1961 will remain intensely competitive in the areas of price, quality and service on farm equipment. Every maker will continue battling the pressures of the cost-price squeeze, and will continue to concentrate on offering the farmer production "tools" to help him reduce his cost inputs in relation to his crop outputs."

"Farm machinery, of course, has demonstrated its ability to help the farmer increase his efficiency. Each farmer now is capable of raising enough material for himself and 25 other persons. This contrasts with the 1950 ratio of one farmer for 15 persons."

"This relationship gives a measure of the true value of the modern equipment available today to the nation's food and fiber growers. In the drive toward still greater efficiency, many farmers now are indicating they plan to increase their equipment purchases next year."

"On the basis of a predicted gross farm income one per cent above the 1960 level and in the belief that many purchases deferred from last Spring will be made next Spring, we look for a noticeably healthier business year in 1961."

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question: We are going to have our attic finished and expect to run some heating pipes there. Will our present heating unit be able to handle the extra load or will we be taking some heat away from the lower floor by heating the attic?

Answer: Since you presumably are going to have this job done by a professional, better get his advice on it. In most older homes and some newer ones, the heating unit is large enough to handle heat for an extra room or two. But you might as well be sure, otherwise you may have heating problems later on.

Questions of general interest will be answered in this column. However, Mr. Lang can not undertake individual correspondence.

Cupid's Aim Improves In Monroe County In 1960

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)

Harrisburg — Monroe County for some reason or other apparently was more attractive for weddings last year than in 1958! Or at least that would seem to be the case if the number of marriages performed in the county (not the number of marriage licenses issued, which can be accepted as any criteria.

A statistical round-up for the year just completed by the State Department of Health discloses that a total of 322 marriages took place in Monroe County — which compares with 315 during the preceding year, and 324 the year before!

(Throughout Pennsylvania as a whole last year 71,719 marriages were recorded — up from the previous year's 67,203.)

Inevitably, the month of June proved to be the most popular month for Monroe County couples to embark upon the long voyage — with 47 recorded throwings of the bouquet during that month.

Next most popular month for weddings in the county was the month of August when 40 couples took their vows. On the other hand, January had the lowest number of weddings of any month of the entire year — 15.

A month-by-month breakdown of the number of weddings in the county during the past year (with figures for that month of the preceding year in parenthesis) is as follows:

January, 15 (eight); February, 17 (17); March, 20 (21); April, 26 (25); May, 23 (29); June, 47 (42); July, 18 (31); August, 40 (32); September, 39 (28); October, 26 (23); November, 28 (32); December, 23 (27).

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Things are beginning to fall back into their routine pattern but the general reaction seems to be "ho-hum" instead of "Oh Boy!" We're sort of like those old steam engines, trying to get the train out of the station on an icy morning. A great deal of huffing and puffing and sighing of steam and slipping of wheels but not much progress.

The hula group, back to regular lessons after a long recess, sounded as if they needed oiling around the joints. Food shoppers out to replenish the refrigerator had a tendency to pick hot dogs and store-made potato salad in preference to more glamorous food.

Bowlers were developing cricks in the back and sore thumbs, and at committee meetings there was little enthusiastic volunteering for coming projects. Faced with end-of-semester term papers and examinations, students had their homework books out—and their eyes either fixed straight ahead or shut.

The small fry who had been gooder than good before Christmas got mighty snail-like picking up their toys and developed a tendency to whine. Fathers who'd rigged up the whole front of the house with Christmas lights suddenly started snapping at anyone who left even the night light on as the bills started coming in.

Mother switched from the role of gracious hostess to put-upon martyr with no warning. And guess who was the most jaundiced observer of all this? Why, your lovable old news-gatherer, me!

The Wyckoff
Shopper

"the friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

"What did you receive for Christmas?" one reader would like to know. Oh, many things... but kindness mostly. At least, that's what meant the most. Perhaps my biggest gift was from the girls at the store—platters, bowls and a casserole to match my beautiful blue and white dishes. Then there was Golden Autumn cologne from our cosmetics department, a delightful fragrance; a set of turquoise and 24K gold glasses in a brass carrier; my fur-banded velvet boots; and from my children, a Madonna statue with a sapphire-studded halo.

While not exactly a Christmas gift, I might mention that one of the holiday season's surprises of which I am most proud is an autographed photograph of Dr. Nina Price. I had told her some time ago that since I have autographed pictures of most of the celebrities I've interviewed on our Wyckoff program, I thought I should have one of her. And she remembered. It's a splendid picture—very typical of her with a fetching flowered hat and bright smile.

One of our store's happiest customers last Friday was Mrs. Russell Harmon, who was hurrying to the hairdresser so she'd be glamorous for her first meeting with the newly arrived Jan Louise, daughter of her own daughter, Susan.

I might mention, harking back to Christmas gifts, that I also received a box of all kinds of canned nuts. I'm glad they were shelled and ready to eat, for somewhere along the way we've mislaid our nutcracker. I see sets, including six picks, in our gift department, priced at 50c. There are also some wooden nutcrackers for the same price, but early American though they may be, I think they're clumsy things.

And just get a load of our snifters! WE certainly have a load of them in all sizes, priced at 49c... 59c... 75c up to 4.50, and they have ever so many uses. One friend tells me she uses hers in the bathroom, filled with vari-colored soaps. A recent magazine showed a brandy snifter on the vanity table of a young girl's bedroom, filled with a rainbow of beads and other trinkets. Another idea is to fill a medium sized one with cotton or crumpled facial tissues, and tuck a bottle of cologne at the center so its neck juts out from the glass. My own holds a tiny garden of greens and red berries, and at Christmas breakfast with Betty Colvin, of our Wyckoff corset department, I noticed she had filled a large blue snifter with assorted bright ornaments.

Speaking of blue snifters, the one on our mezzanine is just 5.00.

Wonder if you've noticed our big new selection of Ikora tarnish-resistant silverplated hollowware from Germany, in the gift department. This is truly choice, combining very shiny silver with a frosty white that looks particularly appropriate in a "winter wonderland". There is a compote at 6.50... a scroll-edged candy dish at 7.50... a rather flat serving dish at 8.50, and a tray at 9.50. If, at this point, you are disconcerted by your possessions and feel you need a million-dollar look to give you a lift, Ikora silver may be the solution.

Beautiful, too is the new solid brass from International, creator of the very famous and very precious International silver. Gleaming with a golden luster, and delicately etched and filigreed, the brass selection includes a deep tray on a low, round wooden table, at 25.00... a shell tray at 12.95 (as compared to the matching piece in silver at 8.95)... a platter at 6.00 and other pieces at 10.00. For the "top brass" on your list of anniversary gifts, give solid brass from International.

If you're a knitter who has a yen for a smart plaid jacket, see the Spinner jacket packets, all complete at 13.98 in our notions department.

Gee... the way I'm rambling along here, you'd think I think that people have MONEY after Christmas. Well... maybe YOU do!

Stroud Union Wins 46-44 In Lehigh Valley Debut

LEIGHTON — Stroud Union High School opened its Lehigh Valley League season here Tuesday night with a 46-44 win over Leighton.

Out-shot from the floor 18-14, the Mountaineers converted 18 of 28 foul shots, while Leighton managed a dismal 8 of 26 free throw tries.

And it was four missed foul shots in the final two minutes that prevented the Indians from tying the game and forcing an overtime.

Third Win

The win was the third of the season for Stroud Union, two of them non-league game wins. The Mounties have lost three.

Mike McMahon led the scoring with 13 and Don Osmier followed with 11. John Taylor added nine points before he fouled out late in the game. Bob Fisher, Russ Miller and Roger Zimmerman had 10 each for Leighton, which carried a 33-33 lead into the last period. The Indians managed only eight points in the final period, while Stroud Union collected 13.

Changes Hands

The lead changed sides freely until the closing minutes. The Mountaineers held the biggest bulge, five points, in the third period but couldn't pad it. Leighton chopped the lead down and went ahead 43-42 near the three minute mark.

With 2:49 seconds left in the game, Mike Mahon hit a field goal to put Stroud Union back in front 44-43.

Miller and Zimmerman missed four straight free throw chances in the next 30 seconds and Osmier added a pair of free throws for Stroud Union to make it 46-43 with 1:25 left.

Fisher scored the final point of the game, a free throw. The Indians had two more chances to tie the score but could not control the ball long enough to get off a shot. The Mounties forced a jump ball as time ran out.

Leighton won the junior varsity game 42-30.

Three Teams

"Under Lane we'll probably have one team coming, one playing and one going," Finley said with a smile, referring to Lane's reputation as a baseball trader. Then he added:

"We're going to keep the good players we develop. They won't find their way to Yankee Stadium or any other stadium if they are good."

This was an obvious reference to the many trades the preceding ownership had with the New York Yankees.

Finley emphasized he plans to keep the ball club in Kansas City, regardless of attendance and that he will play all profits back into the club in efforts to build a pennant contender.

Terms of Lane's contract were not announced, except that it is for a minimum of four years. The Kansas City Star estimated it to call for a salary of near $100,000 a year.

Toby Loses In Last Period 46-40

HAWLEY's six-point spread in the last period proved the winning margin as it edged past Tobyhanna Twp., last night 46-40 on Tobyhanna court.

The two teams were all even at the end of the third frame at 31 all but Hawley rimmed 15 points to Toby's nine in last stanza to win the game.

Two guys named Eddie — Ed Luck and Ed Dunlap paced the losers. Luck collected 18 points on seven field goals and four fouls and Dunlap got 13 on six field goals and one foul.

Uguccioni and Simpson were top scorers for the winners with 13 points each.

First Dividends In 15 Years

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Stockholders of the Pittsburgh Pirates received dividend checks of $4 per share in 1960 the first dividend in almost 15 years, the club reported Tuesday.

The Pittsburgh management last rewarded stockholders in 1946 when the team was sold by the late Mrs. Barney Dreyfuss to Frank McKinney, John W. Galbreath, Tom Johnson and Bing Crosby.

By drawing 1,700,000 fans at home and playing to 1,500,000 fans on the road and reaping the profits of a seven-game World Series, it is estimated the 1960 club made more than $1 million dollars.

Galbreath and his son, Danny, own controlling interest in the club. Other major stockholders are Johnson, Crosby and Benjamin F. Fairless, former board chairman of U. S. Steel Corp.

Wilson Stops Cavaliers

In Slow L-N Tilt 49-34

EAST Stroudsburg High School managed only nine field goals in losing 49-34 to Wilson Boro in a poorly played Lehigh-Northampton League game at East Stroudsburg Tuesday night.

It was the seventh loss in a row for the winless Cavaliers, while Wilson Boro evened its record at 4-4.

East Stroudsburg scored only nine points in the first half but was still in the game—Wilson had just 19.

Craig Fuehrer, the league's leading scorer, with a 27 point average, had a tough time getting started but ended with 23 points. He had only one field goal in the first period and he added eight points in the second half.

Harold Myers led the Cavaliers with 12 points, his best point production of the season. He and Fuehrer were the only players in the game to hit for double figures.

The Cavaliers just couldn't score from the field. They went for 13:21 seconds of the first half without a field goal. Myers hit a layup with 5:31 seconds left in the first period and the Cavaliers did not collect another two-point until Glenn Kane scored on a tap with 1:50 left in the second period. The two field goals were the only ones scored by East Stroudsburg in the first 16 minutes.

The Warriors fared only slightly better, collected six points in the first period and 13 in the second. But they reeled off eight straight points at the close of the first period and the opening minutes of the second to take a 10-4 lead with seven minutes left in the first half.

Brief Leads

East Stroudsburg held the lead briefly in the first period. Don Wescott hit a solo foul shot with only six seconds gone in the game to give East Stroudsburg a 1-0 lead and seconds later he added another foul shot to make it 2-0.

Fuehrer scored on a steal to knot the count and Myers scored a field goal to put the Cavaliers ahead for the last time 4-2.

The Warriors' starting center, Jack Messer, picked up his fourth foul seconds later and was benched. He never got back in the game. Until Messer left, the Cavaliers controlled the scoreboards but Messer replacement Bill Baker took charge of the rebounding situation and chipped in seven points.

Move Ahead

Jack Matyas scored two field goals at the end of the first period and his teammates added three more field goals in the space of 45 seconds of the second period, to send Wilson in front for keeps.

The Cavaliers opened the second half with a full-court press and for five minutes it baffled Wilson. But the Warriors soon took advantage of the press to spring men free under their basket and built a 34-22 lead at the end of three quarters.

The press paid the Cavaliers another dividend in the fourth period and they were able to pull within eight points of the Warriors 38-30 with four minutes left.

But the Warriors began collecting easy layups again and led by 17 with only 55 seconds left. Earl Palmer and Myers scored buckets in the last seconds to end the scoring.

Wilson won the junior varsity game 68-47. Jim Steele was high for the Cavaliers with 13, followed by John Mosher's 11.

Huskies Claim Title

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Exuberant Westerners laid claim to national football supremacy for Washington and the Pacific Coast Tuesday.

Washington's 17-7 victory over top-ranked Minnesota in the Rose Bowl Monday "raised the banner of Pacific Coast football to the highest notch on the nation's flagpole," wrote Harry Culver of the Los Angeles Herald-Express.

"We're No. 1," chanted Husky thousands in the bowl. Coach Jim Owens called the game a championship bout, "and if you win you get the title, don't you?"

Washington players echoed that. So did most of the West Coast writers.

"Post-season games theoretically have no bearing on the national championship but they'll always have a tough time trying to overlook the Rose Bowl results," wrote Sports Editor Sid Ziff of the Los Angeles Mirror.

Aid Plan Hurt

Football writer Dick Cullum of the Minneapolis Tribune blamed the decline of the Big Ten football in the Rose Bowl on the conference's four-year-old plan of granting athletic scholarships primarily on the basis of need.

"Washington was a better team than any seen in the Big Ten last fall," he wrote. "Since most football people on the Pacific Coast think UCLA was at least the equal of Washington, we are compelled to fear that football out here is catching up with football in the Big Ten, or in fact has caught up with it."

Whether Washington deserves to be rated ahead of Minnesota, the matter will remain academic. The Gophers were placed No. 1 and Washington 6 in the final AP ranking.

BOWLING OVER the bowl games picking the television stars.

BEST PLAYED GAME — Orange Bowl. It wasn't a bad day for Bellino but a bad day for the Navy line. Missouri handled the Navy linemen with ease, allowing Bellino only four yards in eight carries.

BEST BOWL PERFORMER — Don Schloredt, Washington, quarterback. He kept the Huskies together when it appeared that Minnesota might storm back in the second half.

MOST OVERRATED PLAYER — Danny LaRose, Missouri end. The announcer kept referring to LaRose as "Missouri's great All-American" but LaRose did nothing to deserve the tag in the Orange Bowl.

MOST UNDERRATED PLAYER — Tom Hall, Minnesota's left end. He stopped the Washington sweeps to his side and forced the Huskie attack to run almost exclusively to the opposite side.

BEST BLOCKER — Tom Brown, Minnesota's All-American guard. Minnesota gained 212 yards on the ground and Brown was in front of most of the gaining ball carriers.

BEST RUN — Lance Alworth's 49 yard punt return for Arkansas' only score.

BEST PASS CATCH — It had to be Bellino's touchdown grab for Navy's final six-pointer.

BEST PASS RECEIVER — Duke end Tee Morman. He was lonesome only until the ball was snapped.

DULLEST GAME — Even though it was the closest, the Cotton Bowl didn't have the action the other three games came up with.

BEST PUNT — Schloredt's 50-yard boot from his end zone in the closing seconds of the Rose Bowl.

POOREST PUNT — Navy's Greg Mather managed only a six-yard kick in the first quarter of the Orange Bowl. Navy Coach Wayne Hardin's heart almost jumped further than the ball.

SMARTEST CALL — The on-sides kick tried by Navy after it scored an early touchdown on a 98-yard run by Mather with an intercepted lateral.

BEST COMEBACK — Rice. It took Mississippi only four minutes to score its first touchdown and it looked as if the Rebels would crush Rice. But the Owls bounced back and with a few breaks could have won the game.

BEST TELEVISION COVERAGE — The Orange Bowl. Paul Christman, as the color man did a great job. But CBS should have sent the blimp back to the Orange Bowl Regatta.

BEST OFFICIATED GAME — Orange Bowl, while the Rose Bowl gets the nod as the poorest officiated contest.

Van Brocklin, who wants to be a head coach in pro football, will turn down the offer, he told The Associated Press. Unless he gets the coaching job he'll pack up his family and return to his native Oregon. It is understood he has a good job with a swim suit firm waiting for him on the West Coast.

Gov. Lawrence Outlines Program, Warns Solons To Expect No Rest

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. David L. Lawrence Tuesday outlined a 14-point legislative program and told the 1961 General Assembly to expect no rest in the months ahead.

Assembly to expect a lot of work without much rest in the months ahead.

Lawrence, now in the middle of his four-year term, unveiled his administration's legislative program—a mixture of old and new proposals—before a joint session of the Senate and House.

It brought immediate praise from members of his own Democratic party. Republican legislative leaders were less enthusiastic. The 72-year-old chief executive—wearing a dark blue suit and black tie with a white handkerchief tucked in his breast pocket—took about 15 minutes to deliver his "State of the Commonwealth" message.

Veteran legislative observers said they thought it was the briefest address ever delivered by a governor at the opening of a legislative session.

Lawrence told lawmakers the 1961 Assembly "must be a working session." He urged them to "move with all deliberate speed" in adopting the state's first one-year budget since post-Civil War days and in acting on his legislative program.

General Setup

One of the major new proposals in that program called for an overhaul of the Department of Forests and Waters.

Lawrence gave only a general outline of the reorganization plan—he is expected to say more at a news conference Wednesday—but said it was needed to consolidate recreation and conservation activity in one agency.

Under the plan the department would be called the Department of Conservation and Recreation. The proposed changes would not affect activities of the State Game and Fish commissions.

Most of his other proposals were submitted to the 1959 legislature but failed to gain passage. These included legislation on fair housing, highway safety, billboard control and state aid for public libraries.

He indicated the administration would increase its attention to water resources. He said he expected to recommend an interstate-federal compact for development of the Delaware River.

"I also hope to report to you the beginning of similar planning and development for the Susquehanna Valley, and the valleys of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Upper Ohio," he added.

Republican reaction to the opening address perhaps was summed up best in the remark by Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, 84-year-old Dauphin County Republican and long-time Senate GOP power.

"That was a swell speech but what are we going to do for money?" Lawrence gave no indication of what he would ask for in the way of funds for proposed new programs—such as state aid to libraries, water resources improvements and state aid for promoting tourist business.

Remembers

Sen. James S. Berger, Potter, Senate GOP floor leader, said the speech was reminiscent of Lawrence's address to the opening session in 1959.

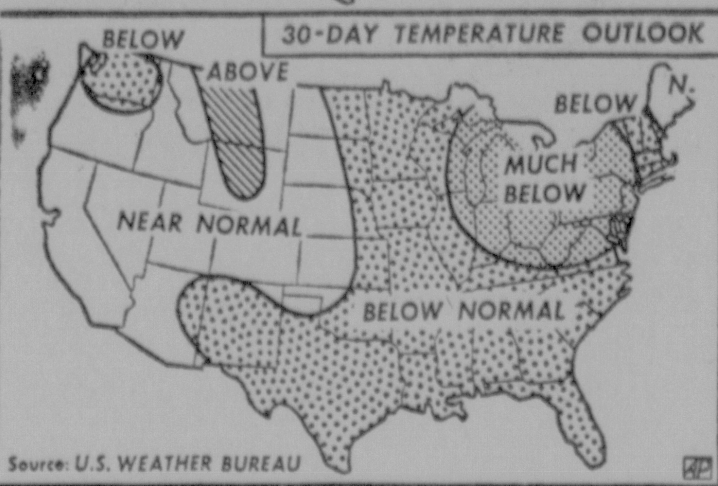

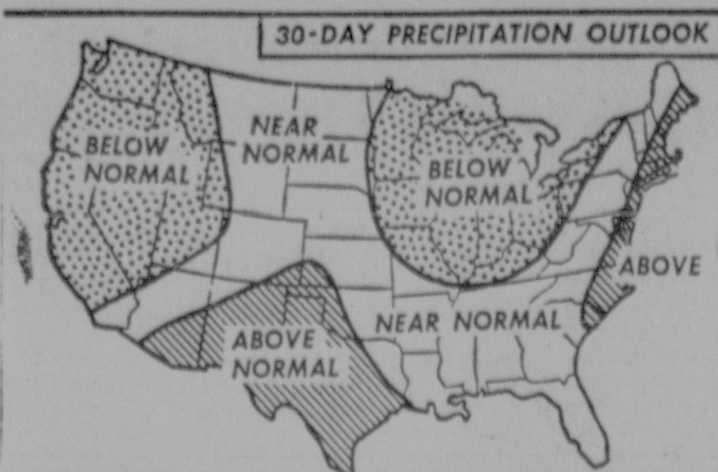

"The programs he outlined have been considered but we are always willing to give them further consideration," he said. To Lawrence's expression of concern over what he termed obstruction tactics in the Assembly, Berger replied:

"Nobody should confuse opposition with obstruction—opposition is based on logic."

Rep. Willard F. Agnew, Allegheny, the 36-year-old House GOP floor leader, said Lawrence's speech was "full of promise but let us wait for the performance." To Lawrence's appeal for a state-first, politics-last approach in the session, he replied:

"We (Republicans) will stop playing politics when the governor does."

Rep. Albert W. Johnson, McKean County Republican, said Lawrence's address "was signifi-

Problem: Devise Soviet Intentions

By J. M. ROBERTS

Associated Press News Analyst

One of the first jobs for John J. McCloy and his "department of disarmament" will be to devise a decisive test of Soviet intentions with regard to a ban on nuclear testing.

At the moment, the Soviet Union has achieved what she wanted—a ban without provisions for enforcement. A considerable section of expert opinion suspects that she is taking advantage of it to develop new weapons while the United States stands still.

President-elect John F. Kennedy has virtually promised that, while a major effort will be made to obtain an agreement fair to both sides, this situation will not be allowed to continue beyond a reasonable time—and considering the long-continued evasions already, a reasonable time could only be a short time.

No Prospect

And there is no prospect that, in a short time, the Communists will emerge sufficiently from their primitive attitude toward foreign inspection to make an agreement possible.

The new emphasis which the Kennedy administration is prepared to give this problem, along with the whole idea of disarmament, is perhaps the best propaganda which the United States is now prepared to make abroad.

Fear of the mounting arms race is almost universal. The Soviet Union, despite her weaseling when the chips are down, has made a considerable impression throughout the world just by harping on the subject for the last 15 years.

Even if Kennedy should give McCloy a thousand highly talented researchers, of course, it wouldn't mean any agreements unless they produced plans which would give the Soviet Union an advantage—over the Soviets will accept no other.

Establishes Maxim

The new Communist manifesto establishes a maxim by which Western diplomats must now be governed, probably for years. There's bound to be something wrong with any Western move which the Communists like.

The greatest service of the new disarmament administration, therefore, will be to produce proposals which are so fair as to be unmistakably sincere, and which in their refusal to buy bare at every opportunity the Communist intention to retain the use of force as an ultimate weapon in case of failure of their cold war. This intention is stated clearly in the manifesto. The world will not understand the full meaning of the long years of conflict ahead unless it is borne in mind at every turn.

Goddard Asks Regroup Of Department

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's forests and waters secretary said Tuesday a proposed reorganization of his department is sorely needed to improve and consolidate government services.

Maurice K. Goddard said in an interview that the reorganization sought by Gov. David L. Lawrence "is intended to consolidate all activity involving conservation and recreation under one roof." The proposed changes would not affect activities of the state game and fish commissions.

The governor gave a broad outline of his plan in a "State of the Commonwealth" address before the 145th General Assembly's opening session. He said the forests and waters agency would become the Department of Conservation and Recreation under the reorganization.

Goddard said legislation to implement the administration's proposal is being whipped into final shape. However, he was unable to say when it will be submitted.

"This will make for better administration of the duties we have to perform," Goddard said, adding:

Too Many Agencies

"There are, for example, too many independent agencies that are responsible to the governor. We should try to consolidate these various activities so that our operations don't become too unwieldy."

He said present plans call for transferring certain functions now in the departments of commerce and internal affairs to the new conservation and recreation department. There is a possibility that the Historical and Museum Commission will be put in the reorganized agency, he added.

The Forests and Waters Department was set up originally under the administrative code of 1923. Through the years it has been known as Department of Forestry and the Water Supply Commission.

At one time duties now assigned to the department came under the Agriculture Department. Although small in size compared with other state departments—it employs about 450 persons full-time—forests and waters has become one of the most active departments over the years.

Goddard, a nationally recognized authority in the field of conservation, took over as secretary in 1955 and immediately began an ambitious program to improve the state's recreation and flood control programs.

Parks Increased

In the past six years, the number of state parks has increased from 45 to 70. Several more already are under construction and the department is negotiating land purchases for others. The 70 now completed cover 189,000 acres.

The department has undertaken 430 state flood control projects since 1955, including two big ones costing about $2 million each in the Scranton and Stroudsburg areas. In addition, the department supervises state participation in federal flood control projects.

Aside from legislative appropriations, the department is supported by oil and gas royalties from state forest lands. It is operating under a $16,332,000 appropriation for the current biennium ending next May 31.

Market Loses In First '61 Session

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a loss Tuesday on its first session of 1961. Trading was the lightest in a month and a half.

A number of leading issues, including a representative assortment of blue chips, were hit pretty badly by profit taking on their 1960 year-end rise.

On the other hand, many "depressed" issues went ahead. Steels, up from fractions to more than 2, were said to respond to higher prices for steel scrap and expectations of a pickup in orders. Most auto stocks were moderately higher.

Of the 1,242 issues traded, declines exceeded advances by only 551 to 501. New 1960-61 highs totaled 27 and new lows 8.

Based on a fairly sharp decline in the Associated Press advance, however, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange fell by an estimated $2 billion.

Emphasis Taken

Emphasis was taken from the dip, however, by the light volume of 2.77 million shares compared with Friday's 5.3 million. It was the smallest turnover since Nov. 17 when 2.45 million shares changed hands.

The AP 60-stock average fell 1.50 to 219.40 with the industrials off 2.70, rails up .20 and utilities down .80.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.64 to 610.25.

Eight of the 15 most active stocks were lower, five advanced and two were unchanged.

Some sharp profit taking also occurred on the American Stock Exchange where prices declined on volume of 800,000 shares compared with Friday's 2.44 million.

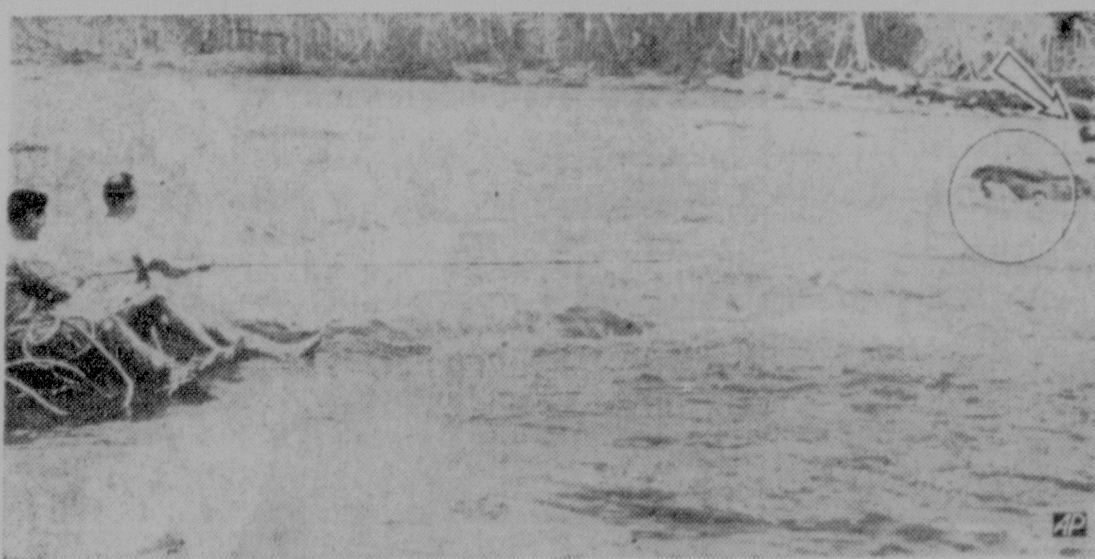

Corporate bonds advanced while U.S. government bonds took their worst setback in months. Bond volume dropped to $4.92 million per value on the New York Stock Exchange from $8.05 million Friday—the third busiest day of 1960.

Dial TE 9-7409

Mrs. Robert McCollegan and three children of Scranton, spent two days visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Sutton. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Storm, Linda and Gloria Storm, Mountainhome.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ifft, formerly of Stroudsburg and Mt. Pocono, now living in California, spent some time during the holidays at the home of Mrs. Ifft's mother, Mrs. Bruno Parth. They have returned to their home.

Advertising

need

defense

—do you destroy all books because there are authors who write bad ones?

—do you stop eating out because there are some restaurant keepers who inferior meals?

—do you condemn all advertising because there are some poor advertisements?

Advertising itself is good. It keeps you informed. Like most books and restaurants, most advertising render honest value. It tells you about the benefits of many worthwhile, even wonderful, products and services. It helps you to compare these benefits, helps you to choose, helps you to enjoy.

And, if you work for a business which uses advertising, it helps you, again, by helping that business to get and keep customers.

Advertising is so important to our way of life, in so many ways, it would take more pages than there are in this newspaper just to tell you about them.

Everybody needs the benefits of advertising. When anyone publicly criticizes advertising, it is usually a political climber or opportunist who, in criticism, has found a cheap way to advertise himself.

If you have a complaint or dissatisfaction with any product or service, bought because of an advertisement, put the blame where it belongs. —when an advertisement overpromises, blame not advertising but the advertising man.

—when a product or service underperforms, blame not advertising but the advertiser.

The Daily Investor

By William A. Doyle

Q. When a foreign country takes over a company by "nationalizing" it, what happens to the stockholders' investment? Does that country pay the company for the value of the seized property? Does the company, in turn, distribute that money to its stockholders? Does the company continue to operate?

A. The results of nationalization vary all over the lot — from one situation to another. Mostly, it depends on the country involved and the "Political climate" in that country.

To begin with, any country that seizes private property is inclined toward socialism — government ownership of property and the means of production.

That, of course, isn't good for our capitalist, free enterprise system. This is a big problem for companies with operations in certain countries.

Sometimes a country will seize private property and pay the full value for those properties. But there have been many cases in which the payment has been way below the real value.

In some cases there have been promises to pay — promises never fulfilled. And, in still other cases, properties have been seized with absolutely no arrangements for payment. That's when nationalization becomes expropriation.

When a company does get paid for such seizure, it sometimes distributes the money to its shareholders. But, more often, the company uses the money in its other operations — such as setting up a new plant in a different country.

Q. I own some stock, registered in my name. If I bequeath this stock to a relative, through a will, could the relative have the stock transferred to her name after I die? She will, of course, have my death certificate.

A. We're a bit morbid today, aren't we?

Yes, whoever you leave your stocks (or any other possessions) to can have the registered ownership transferred. And it should be done.

And, in this case, your heir would have to supply proof of the bequest (the will) of proof of your death (the death certificate) plus proof that all federal estate tax, state inheritance taxes and other claims against your estate have been satisfied.

Q. You have mentioned stock dividends and stock splits in General Telephone & Electronics common stock. Is this the same stock as General Telephone of California? I own some of the latter stock.

A. No. General Telephone & Electronics is the "parent company." General Telephone of California is its largest telephone subsidiary.

General Telephone & Electronics owns all the common stock of General Telephone of California. But General Telephone of California does have three different issues of preferred stocks in the hands of the investing public. You evidently own some General Telephone of California preferred stock.

ICC Rejects Rate Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A proposal for uniform rail freight rates on shipments moving to and from midwestern points was rejected Tuesday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The lower rate base which Philadelphia, Baltimore and the Hampton Roads, Va., areas have been preserved by the 9-1 ICC vote.

Higher rates apply at the ports of New York and Boston. The commission majority noted in its decision that the port of New York, despite higher rates, dominates the export-import traffic.

The majority report said: "The present differentials have long served to retain a reasonable competitive relationship between the principal port groups and should be maintained."

The case before the ICC involved all export-import traffic except coal, coke and iron ore.

ADVERTISER AT WORK!

Advertising can turn the coldest customer into a hot prospect. Throughout the pages of this newspaper you can find many examples of the warm appeal generated by advertising.

But you can't warm up to anything if you're not aware of it. Advertising works overtime to keep you posted on new products and remind you of established brands. It is part of the variety of news in your newspaper.

Advertising is a valuable asset to our economy because it provides the stimulant that makes people buy. As more goods are bought, more and more goods are made—and at lower cost to you. So, you see, advertising really benefits you!

Every day, all across this land of ours, advertising—like the advertising in this newspaper—is doing its part to bring you the good news of more and better products—products that are constantly improving our standard of living.
